The Act does not prohibit an official from participation in a home renovation show. To the extent that the official pays for all components of the project, participating on the show will not result in income or a gift to the official. Additionally, if the network makes a payment for unanticipated costs necessary to complete the project and the final production from the reserve it sets aside for all participants, the payment is a discount offered in the normal course of business and is neither income nor a gift to the official.
